Salt Lake Lawyer's Encounter With Los Angeles Police.

WERE LOOKING FOR A MAN WHO PASSED BAD MONEY.

D. N. Straup is another Salt Lake of law-abiding habits who has recently been taken into custody under the impression that he was somebody else Mr. Straup's experience came fast Thursday night in Los Angeles, Cal., and he left his family comfortably established at Long Beach Thursday hight and took a car to Los Angeles, whence he expected to depart for home at 11:30 that night. He had figured or a close connection at Los Angeles and would have made it all right had not the police interfered. Mr. Straup tells it something like this:

Placed Under Arrest.

I was just about to step off the car when a man in plain clothes tapped me and said: 'You're under arrest.' I thought he was just joshing so I said: 'That's interesting,' and smiled pleasantly at him. 'Come along,' he said and pretty soon by flashing his star and talking some more he convinced, me talking some more he convinced me that he meant it. He said he didn't know what the charge was, but that I would have to go to the station with

I tried to argue him out of it and flashed a lot of letters, transportation, telegrams, etc. My credentials were making a good impression when he struck one telegram from the firm here. It was signed by Judge Powers and notified me of the setting of several cases in the Utah courts. It read something like: 'Smith, Hall 10th, Jones, Morse 12th,' etc., and was quite plain to me but the policeman got the notion that it was a cipher message from my that it was a cipher message from my pal and that did settle it.

"I'm sorry," he said, 'you look all right, but I'll have to take you to the station. If you can convince the chief you are all right I think we can get you back to the station in time to catch The Chief Was Grouchy.

'So I had to go up with him to the station. There we were taken before the chief and I sat down.
"'Stand up!' growled the chief, gruf-

"'Now, here,' I said to him, 'you peo-ple are going to be apologizing a lot to me in a few minutes, and even supposing you were not you can treat me like a gentleman, and I intend to sit down while we are talking. You can go through me and my grip all you want to. You can telephone over to the An-gelus and get Gus Holmes and he will ell you who I am. There's no occasion or anybody to get excited about it.' "I had a letter of introduction from my bank here in Salt Lake to spare me he necessity of being identified when went to cash drafts, and pretty soon, n going through me, the chief struck What's this?" he inquired. "That, I replied, is a letter from bank that enables me to get money when I am away from home.'

"I couldn't get any money on this,"

"'Maybe you haven't got any money, in the bank,' I answered. This held him for a minute, then he turned on 'Where did you leave Clark?' he

'I don't know any Clarks in this part of the country,' I told him, 'and I haven't seen a Clark lately.'

In the "Sweat Box." Where did you go after you bought that pair of shoes today?' was his next

"I haven't bought any shoes today,"
I politely rejoined.
"'Have you got any of that Brunswick money with you now?' he de-

"'I've got some money, but not know-ing what particular kind of money Brunswick money is, I can't tell you whether I have any of the Brunswick variety with me.'

"Well, it's a long story. After searching me and my grip and holding me until the train left, they concluded they had the wrong man and, as I expected, they became wondrously polite and quite filled up with regret. They told me who they thought I was. I was passing $20 bills on the Brunswick bank of New Jersey, a defunct institution. "I told them that I was convinced
